PART I—Section 1*Notifications relating to Non-Statutory Rules, Regulations and Orders and Resolutions issued by the Ministries of the Government of India (other than the Ministry of Defence) and by the Supreme Court*PRESIDENT'S SECRETARIATNew Delhi, the 27th January 1960*

No. 21-Pres./60.—The President is pleased to award the Police Medal for gallantry to the undermentioned officer of the Orissa Police:—

Name of the Officer and Rank.

Shri Braja Behari Jena, Constable No. 94, Bolangir District, Orissa.

Statement of Services for which the decoration has been awarded.

On the afternoon of the 27th March, 1959 a fire broke out in a house in Burda village, Bolangir District, and, fanned by a strong wind, spread rapidly to other houses in the village. News of the fire reached Loisingha Police Station a mile away, from where a party consisting of two Police officers, two Constables, ten Chowkidars and some local officials and businessmen hurried to Burda. When they arrived several houses were ablaze. In one of them well inside the village three women were trapped in a closed room. The relatives of the women and others stood by helplessly. When all hope of rescuing them seemed lost, Constable Braja Behari Jena dashed through the blazing fire towards the house. The other Constable encouraged by his brave example followed and assisted him in bringing the three women to safety.

Meanwhile, it was learnt that there were three women in another house about a hundred yards within the heart of the conflagration. Constable Braja Behari Jena once more ran the gauntlet of the flames and, on unchaining the door of the house, found the three women lying senseless. He first carried to safety one of the women who was with child, and returned to rescue a second. He entered the blazing village again to bring out the third woman which he did with the assistance of two members of the Sonepur Fire Brigade which had meantime arrived. The three women were removed to Loisingha Hospital and subsequently recovered from their ordeal.

In saving these six persons from almost certain death Constable Braja Behari Jena showed great courage and devotion to duty of a high order at grave risk to his own life.

2. This award is made for gallantry under rule 4(i) of the rules governing the award of the Police Medal and consequently carries with it the special allowance admissible to officers of and below the rank of Inspector of Police as provided in rule 5.

MINISTRY OF COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT AND COOPERATION

(Department of Community Development)

RESOLUTIONNew Delhi, the 18th January 1960*

No. 8(VI)/Bd/59.—In the Second Five Year Plan it has been envisaged that during 1951–61 urban population would increase by 38 per cent, a rate of urbanisation somewhat higher than the decade 1931–41. The Foodgrains Enquiry Committee headed by Shri Asoka Mehta also observed that in recent years the urban population in India has increased at an annual rate more than twice as large as that shown by the total population. Having regard to this rising trend in urban population, creation of new centres of small scale industrial production closely coordinated with rural development is fundamental to national development, for in no other way can the present occupational imbalance between agriculture and industry, between village and town, be corrected. With the development of power resources and communications and the growth of small scale industries, the scope for establishing Rural-cum-Urban Township at the Block Headquarters has steadily increased. About 600 blocks would be entering Stage III during the Third Plan Period of which 100 block headquarters may be taken up for further development as rural-cum-urban Townships.

2. The Government of India have, therefore, decided to set up a Study team for the purpose of touring some selected Block Headquarters in order to examine the various facets of the problem and to formulate a scheme for rural-cum-urban projects on an agro-industrial base.

3. The Study Team will consist of the following:-

4. The terms of reference of the Study team will be as follows:-

- (3) To frame a type scheme to be taken up in the proposed Urban-cum-rural units for generating additional employment opportunities on an Agro-industrial base.

5. The Study team will submit its report within three months from the date of its formation.

BEFORE THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT INDUSTRIAL TRIBUNAL AT BOMBAY

REFERENCE (CGIT) No. 25 of 1959

In the matter of

Nedungadi Bank Ltd., Kozhikode,

AND

their workmen.

PRESENT

Shri F. Jeejeebhoy, Presiding Officer.

APPEARANCES:

For the Bank:

Shri A. S. Asayekar, Advocate.

Shri N. P. Vellody.

For the Union:

Shri K. K. Mundal, Vice-President of the All India Bank Employees Association.

Shri G. N. Trikannad, Asstt. Secretary, All India Bank Employees Association.

AWARD

By its Order of 17th October 1959 the Government of India in the Ministry of Labour & Employment has referred to this Tribunal a point of difficulty or doubt which in the opinion of the Central Government has arisen as to the interpretation of paragraph 64 and 152 of the Award of the All India Industrial Tribunal (Bank Disputes), Bombay, in respect of the following matter specified in the Schedule to the Reference, namely:

"Whether the increased dearness allowance payable to the employees of the Nedungadi Bank Ltd., consequent on its upgrading from 'D' Class to 'C' Class, should be further enhanced to allow for the rise of cost of living index during the half year ended 31st December 1959."

2. The Nedungadi Bank Limited of Calicut which was a 'D' class Bank was upgraded to 'C' class with effect from 1st January 1958. It is a bank in area II. The clerk in a 'D' class bank gets as minimum dearness allowance Rs. 30/- and a clerk in a 'C' class bank gets Rs. 45/- as minimum dearness allowance. Similarly in the case of the subordinate staff the minimum dearness allowance if in a class 'D' bank is Rs. 25/- in area II, and it is Rs. 35/- in the same area in a 'C' class bank.

3. Paragraph 64 of the Sastry Award clearly contemplates upgrading as well as downgrading of banks. It provides that the change-over from one group to another should not adversely affect the total emoluments of the existing employees drawn by them on the date of the change-over. But this obviously has reference to a case of downgrading.

4. Upon upgrading of this Bank from class D to class C the bank gave the employees the requisite rise in pay and raised the dearness allowance to the minimum dearness allowance of class 'C' banks. It so happened that in the previous six months, namely, from 1st July 1957 to 31st December 1957 the average all-India cost of living index had risen by more than 10 points, and that being so an increased dearness allowance of 1/7th to the clerical staff and of 1/10th to the subordinate staff became payable to all employees. The bank however did not give such increases to its employees who had emerged from class D status to class C status, and did not give them even the rises which would have been given if they had remained in class D.

5. It has been the case of the Bank that the increase in dearness as given by the Bank Award Commission at paragraph 105 of its Report was intended to be a compensation for the rise in the cost of living of the preceding six months, and even if that was payable to the employees of this Bank, it had been merged in the rise of dearness allowance in consequence of the upgrading from Rs. 25 to Rs. 35 for the subordinate staff and from Rs. 30 to Rs. 45 in the case of the clerks. They contend that the mere fact of upgrading had given a substantial rise in dearness allowance, and that no further rise was contemplated. Counsel for the bank maintained that a new comer would not be entitled to any adjustment as to the dearness allowance by reason of paragraph 105 of the Bank Award Commission's Report.

6. In my opinion the contentions of the Bank are erroneous. The Bank Award was striving at uniformity in wages, and in order to achieve that uniformity the banks were divided into different classes and even into different regions with particular emoluments. Thus every employee of a bank of a particular category in a particular region and in the same class of Bank would get exactly the same emoluments. If the contentions of this bank, urged before me today, are to be accepted, then that scheme of uniformity would be disturbed. The formula given by the Bank Award Commission is in following terms:

Clerical staff:

If the average all-India cost of living index for the half year ending June or December of any year should rise or fall by more than 10 points as compared to 144 (1944-100), the dearness allowance for the succeeding half year will be raised or lowered by one-seventh of the dearness allowance admissible at the index level of 144 for each variation of 10 points.

Subordinate staff:

If the average all-India cost of living index for the half year ending June or December of any year should rise or fall by more than 10 points as compared to 144 (1944-100), the dearness allowance for the succeeding half year will be raised or lowered by one-tenth of the dearness allowance admissible at the index level of 144 for each variation of 10 points.

I would like to add in this connection that I consulted both bankers and employees in regard to the two formula for adjustment of dearness allowance which I have just recommended. Employees, on the whole agreed with my formulae, whilst there appeared to be a difference of opinion amongst bankers on this point."

7. I am unable to accept the contention of the bank that any rise given as a result of the Bank Award Commission's formula (which practically followed the lines of the Labour Appellate Tribunal formula) was intended to compensate the clerks and the subordinate staff for any rise in the cost of living of the previous six months or was intended to reimburse the banks for any loss arising out of a lower cost of living of the previous six months. There is nothing in the award to indicate that the rise or fall as contemplated by the Bank Award Commission was intended to be by way of compensation for what had gone before. It was in fact intended to be a scheme of dearness allowance for the ensuing six months. The fact of the matter is that the Sastry Tribunal, the Labour Appellate Tribunal, as well as the Bank Award Commission, were all striving to give a suitable formula to meet the increases in the cost of living and also to provide for certain relief to the employers when the cost of living dropped. In the case of the textile industry of Bombay and of Ahmedabad there was not much difficulty in adjusting the wages according to the rises and falls in the cost of living because the cost of living figures as compiled by the Government of Bombay were available every month. The Emoluments of employees of banks, however, were dealt with on an all-India basis; and after an examination of various alternatives it was felt that the cost of living index as compiled by the Central Government, while having its drawbacks, was nevertheless a cost compilation which could be suitably utilised for the purpose of adjusting the dearness allowance. Thus it was that a formula was given based upon the Central Government's index, firstly by the Tribunal, secondly slightly amended by the Labour Appellate Tribunal, and thirdly, adopted by the Bank Award Commission with some variation. It was a scheme which could be conveniently adopted, but there was no intention thereby to compensate for any losses or gains of the previous six months. It was considered a good ad hoc formula to meet the various contingencies arising from the rises or drops in the cost of living index of Bank employees all over India.

8. If what the bank contends is accepted, then the immediate effect of the bank's refusal to give an increase according to the Bank Award Commission formula, in addition to the dearness allowance of Rs. 35 for the subordinate staff and Rs. 45 to the clerical staff, would be to place these two categories of this upgraded bank at a permanent disadvantage in relation to similar employees of other class C Banks in area II. This disadvantage might become accentuated if the fall in the cost of living follows a certain pattern.

9. In my opinion the employees of this bank, upgraded from D to C class, are entitled to the same basic wages and dearness allowance as any similar employee of a class C bank in area II. On upgrading of the Bank from class D to Class C, the employee of the such Bank is entitled to ask for the same dearness allowance in terms of money as is allowable to a similar employee in a bank which has been classed C from its very inception. In my opinion to refuse this claim is to ignore the underlying principle of the award and the intention of the Bank Award Commission. If it was intended that the dearness allowance would apply differently to a person who came into a higher class as a result of upgrading, then the award would have clearly said so, and there is nothing in the award to indicate that any differentiation was intended in the matter of emoluments between the employee of a Bank which had been upgraded and the employee of a similar bank which had received the same grading from the commencement of the award.

10. This question before me is a matter of interpretation, and I answer the Reference in the following terms:

The employees of the Nedungadi Bank Ltd., Calicut, upon its upgrading from class D to class C, are entitled at all times to the same basic wages and dearness allowance as are payable to the employees of a 'C' class Bank in area II which had been graded as 'C' class from the very inception of the award. This means that they will be entitled to the increased dearness allowance which has been paid to every employee of a class C Bank in area II on account of the rise in the cost of living index during the half year ended 31st December 1959 in accordance with paragraph 105 of the Bank Award Commissions Report; and this will be in addition to the increase in dearness allowance from Rs. 25 to Rs. 35 for the subordinate staff and from 30 to 45 for the clerical staff.

11. I give my decision accordingly.

F. JEEJEEBHoy,
Dated the 14th Day of January, 1960. Presiding Officer,
Central Govt. Industrial Tribunal at Bombay.
